

Greening SME Finance: Toward a more sustainable and resilient future
GLOBAL SME FINANCE FORUM 2021
October 18-21, 2021

As governments around the world wrestle to contain the spread of COVID-19 and its unparalleled impact on national economies and people's lives, the crisis also provides a rare opportunity to reimagine the future, and to build a greener, more sustainable and more resilient world by addressing the existential threat of climate change and concordant challenges.

Green finance, which promotes investments and related services for the development and implementation of sustainable business models, and for investment, trade, economic, environmental and social projects, has grown rapidly in different countries and regions. Green finance has become a high priority for many governments and large corporations, largely due to the urgency of climate change.

While significant progress has been made in driving the growth of green finance, little of this has touched SMEs, despite the fact that they contribute substantially to job creation and economic growth, cumulatively accounting for significant environmental and social problems.

The Global SME Finance Forum 2021 will focus on the importance of greening SME finance and its role in promoting more resilient and sustainable growth post COVID-19 and will also address some of the key issues and challenges vis-a-vis greenwashing, data benchmarking, and verification and misalignment of supply and demand.

The event will convene global thought leaders, climate finance advocates, leading experts and practitioners in the field of SME finance to share their vision, insight and experience in promoting green finance for SMEs.
